What's new this season?

The Atlanta Pops Symphony Orchestra's return September 6 marks its 11th visit to open the Dublin-Laurens Arts Council's concert season. Tickets purchased for this concert are good for all of the remaining 2014-2015 Arts Council performances.

Changing gears

In October, a young cellist from Bogota, Colombia, will bring his talent here for a Sunday afternoon of music. Santiago Valencia has entertained audiences in venues worldwide. And – he has ties to Dublin! Pianist Edward Eikner, Wesleyan College professor, will accompany Valencia. Eikner has performed frequently during Art Council concert seasons and always fills a hall.

More music

SAXsational, a British saxophone quartet, brings its unique, jazzy sound to Dublin in November. The group's music ranges from jazz to classical and includes variety of favorites ranging from "Ain't Misbehavin'" to Pachelbel's "Canon in D."

Music and comedy

Al Simmons has been called a one-man cast of thousands. He will present his multi-prop, music-filled variety show here in February. Simmons is Canada's most versatile comedian.

And for even more fun!

Crescendo, the Arts Council's annual dinner and musical fund raiser, has become a Valentine's Evening tradition. Crescendo tickets are sold separately from the season's concert tickets.
